It was estimated that 14,690 people in Riverside and San Bernardino counties will hear the words "you have cancer" in 2013. As the largest voluntary health organization in the United States, the American Cancer Society's California Division (Inland Empire) is passionately committed to saving lives from cancer by raising awareness and increasing efforts to fund research to save lives in the Inland Empire.

"At Cal Spas, we are always seeking opportunities that support our local and surrounding communities," said Casey Loyd, President of Cal Spas.
